

Ghosts of Long Island II: More Stories of the Paranormal

by Kerriann Flanagan Brosky

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Kerriann Flanagan Brosky is a Magna Cum Laude graduate of Long Island University at C.W. Post, and studied under renowned photographer Arthur Leipzig. She began her photographic career in 1990 as a freelance photojournalist for Newsday and local papers. She then went on to begin a writing career, combining her love of history and photography. She is the author and photographer of four Long Island historically-based books, and is the co-author of an Italian cookbook.

Ms. Brosky served as first Vice President of the Huntington Historical Society's Board of Trustees for six years, as well as serving as a Board of Trustee member for the Greenlawn-Centerport Historical Association for four years. She is currently on the Board of the Long Island Authors Group, where she is second Vice President.

The success of her first ghost book (2006) has prompted much prestigious media coverage, including features in Newsday, The New York Times and Distinction magazine, and she has appeared on the CBS Sunday Morning Show, Channel 21 WLIW's "Ticket" with Laura Savini, Channel 55 and News 12 Long Island. She also appeared as an authority on the history of several Long Island ghost stories and legends for the documentary portion of a film entitled Lost Suburbia (2007). She and Joe Giaquinto are currently working with producers on a documentary television pilot based on Ghosts of Long Island.

A Long Island native, Ms. Brosky lives in Huntington with her husband Karl and their two sons.

For more information, visit www.ghostsoflongisland.com

DEANNA FLANAGAN

mobile 516.526.9722 · deannaflanagan@optonline.net